Announcing the InterContinental Paris Avenue Marceau

Dec 18, 2009 | By: Mary Winston Nicklin | LuxuryTravelAdvisor | ☆☆☆☆☆

It's a wintry wonderland in Paris today as the InterContinental Paris Avenue Marceau opens its doors just a hop away from the Champs-Élysées. Formerly the Crowne Plaza Paris Champs-Élysées, the 55-room property is comprised of three historic buildings around a central courtyard. Interiors by Bruno Borriane, a member of Philippe Starck's team, reflect a melange of French classical and urban contemporary design. Highlights in room? Egyptian cotton bedding by Missoni and Kenzo as well as Hermès bathroom products. All suites boast Bang & Olufsen sound systems and Nespresso coffee machines, while the two penthouse suites promise extraordinary Eiffel Tower views. The InterContinental Paris Avenue Marceau joins the existing InterContinental in the City of Light: InterContinental Paris Le Grand.
